Chapter 1
Introduction: people of early Malta and the Circle

Caroline Malone, Simon Stoddart, Jess E. Thompson & Nicholas Vella

1.1. Introduction 1
1.2. The origins of work at the Circle: funerary archaeology in Malta 1
1.3. Dating early Malta and changing approaches to the past: scientific questions and approaches 5
1.4. Research goals of the Cambridge Gozo Project 5
1.5. Excavation of the Circle 7
1.6.1. The rock-cut tomb methodology 11
1.6.2. Methodology for the main caves and deposits 11
1.7. The research methodologies of the Cambridge Gozo Project (1987–94) 15
1.7.1. Methodologies for bioarchaeological analysis 20
1.8. Recent work 21
1.9. Reflection 22
1.10. Impact of the project work, past and present 22

Chapter 2
New approaches to the bioarchaeology of complex multiple interments

2.1. Introduction 27
2.2. The research questions of the FRAGSUS Population History Workgroup 27
2.2.1. The complex multiple interments at the Circle 27
2.3. Methods employed by the FRAGSUS Population History Workgroup 31
2.4. The first phase: isolation and archiving 32
2.5. The second phase: analyses of the isolated elements 34
2.6. The third phase: data analysis and interpretation 37
2.7. Other studies 37
2.7.1. Funerary taphonomic analysis 37
2.7.2. Metric analysis of the long bones: long bone cross-sectional geometry and body size 37
2.7.3. GIS digitizing 38
2.8. Challenges and concluding thoughts 38

Chapter 3
The chronology, structure and stratigraphy of the Circle

Eóin W. Parkinson, Rowan McLaughlin, Robert Barratt, Sara Boyle, John Meneely, Ronika K. Power, Bernadette Mercieca-Spiteri, Jess E. Thompson, Simon Stoddart & Caroline Malone

3.1. Introduction 39
3.1.1. Archaeological and environmental context 39
3.1.2. Digital organization of the excavation data (RMcL, SKFS) 42
3.1.3. The implementation of appropriate field methods (SKFS & CATM) 43
3.1.4. Intra-site GIS 43
3.1.5. 3D modelling and reconstruction 45

Chapter 6  Dental anthropology from the Circle: non-metric traits of the posterior dentition and population relationships in the Neolithic Mediterranean
Ronika K. Power, Bernardette Mercieca-Spiteri, Jay T. Stock & Joel D. Irish
6.1. Introduction
6.2. Materials
6.3. Methods
6.3.1. Data collection
6.3.2. Quantitative analyses
6.4. Results
6.5. Discussion and conclusions

Chapter 7  Physical activity and body size in Temple Period Malta: biomechanical analysis of commingled and fragmentary long bones
Eoin W. Parkinson & Jay T. Stock
7.1. Introduction
7.2. Materials
7.2.1. Sampling strategy
7.2.2. Comparative sample
7.3. Methods
7.3.1. Long bone cross-sectional geometry
7.3.2. Approaches to fragmented material
7.3.3. Statistical approach
7.4. Results
7.4.1. Upper and lower limb CSG properties
7.4.2. Body size
7.5. Discussion
7.6. Conclusion

Chapter 8  General pathology in the Circle: biocultural insights into population health, trauma and care in Neolithic Malta
8.1. Introduction
8.2. Materials
8.3. Methods
8.4. Results: overview
8.4.1. Spinal pathologies
8.4.2. Extreme extremities
8.4.3. Notable absences
8.4.4. Persons of interest
8.4.5. Taphonomic considerations
8.5. Results: case studies
8.5.1. Trauma: cranium and mandible
8.5.2. Other cranial pathology
8.5.3. Post-cranial pathology
8.6. Methodology case study: periosteal lesions in Context (960)
8.6.1. Context (960) adult remains
8.6.2. Context (960) non-adult remains
8.7. Discussion
8.7.1. Limitations of study
8.7.2. The Circle in context
8.7.3. The bioarchaeology of care
8.7.4. Hyperostosis frontalis interna 276
8.7.5. Endocranial lesions 278
8.7.6. Nutrition 280
8.7.7. Interpersonal violence 282
8.8. Conclusion 284

Chapter 9  An isotopic study of provenance and residential mobility at the Circle and the Xemxija tombs
Argyro Nafplioti, Rowan McLaughlin, Emma Lightfoot, Ronika K. Power, Bernardette Mercieca-Spiteri, Catherine J. Kneale, Tamsin C. O’Connell, Simon Stoddart & Caroline Malone
9.1. Introduction 287
9.2. Background 287
9.2.1. Neolithic transition and population/settlement history in the Maltese Islands 287
9.3. Materials and methods 288
9.3.1. Principles of oxygen isotope ratio analysis 288
9.3.2. Principles of strontium isotope ratio analysis 288
9.3.3. The geological context 289
9.3.4. Samples 289
9.3.5. Sample preparation and analytical procedures 290
9.4. Results 291
9.5. Discussion 292
9.5.1. Variation in oxygen isotope ratio values 292
9.5.2. Variation in $^{87}$Sr/$^{86}$Sr values 293
9.6. Conclusion 293

Chapter 10  An isotopic study of palaeodiet at the Circle and the Xemxija tombs
10.1. Introduction 295
10.2. Background: previous work 295
10.3. Food sources in prehistoric Malta
10.3.1. Tooth enamel samples 296
10.3.2. Bone collagen 296
10.4. Data analysis 296
10.5. Results 296
10.6. Discussion and conclusion 302

Chapter 11  aDNA: an investigation of uniparental genetic heritage in Neolithic Malta
11.1. Introduction 303
11.1.1. The genome and ancient DNA 303
11.1.2. Ancient DNA 303
11.1.3. Background: the genetic context of the Mesolithic in Europe 304
11.1.4. The genetic impact of the agricultural revolution 304
11.1.5. Arrival in Malta 305
11.2. Research questions 306
11.3. Methods 306
11.3.1. aDNA data collection and mitochondrial analysis 306
11.3.2. Contamination 306
Chapter 12
Reconstructing deathways at the Circle and the Xemxija tombs through funerary taphonomy
Jess. E. Thompson, Ronika K. Power, Bernardette Mercieca-Spiteri, Rowan McLaughlin, John Robb, Simon Stoddart & Caroline Malone

12.1. Introduction 311
12.2. Funerary taphonomy 312
12.3. Materials and sampling strategy 313
12.4. Methods 314
12.5. Results 316
   12.5.1. Taphonomic analysis 316
   12.5.2. Skeletal element representation 320
   12.5.3. In situ articulation 326
12.6. Deathways at the Circle and the Xemxija Tombs 328
12.7. Conclusion 331

Chapter 13
The development of Late Neolithic burial places in Malta and Gozo: an overview
Anthony Pace

13.1. Introduction 333
13.2. Background 333
13.3. Central Mediterranean beginnings 340
13.4. The development of burial sites in Malta and Gozo 343
   13.4.1. Għar Dalam and Skorba 343
   13.4.2. Żebbuġ 343
   13.4.3. Ġgantija 346
   13.4.4. Tarxien 350
13.5. Neolithic architecture 352
13.6. Summary 354

Chapter 14
Conclusion: current inferences from the study of death in prehistoric Malta
Simon Stoddart, Caroline Malone, Ronika K. Power, Rowan McLaughlin & Jess E. Thompson

14.1. The state of death in prehistoric Malta 355
14.2. The sample 357
14.3. Who was buried? 358
14.4. When were they buried? 359
14.5. Can we identify changes in the health of the prehistoric populations? 360
14.6. Contemporary body concepts and belief in Neolithic Malta 360
14.7. Conclusion 363
14.8. Whither death studies in Malta? 363
